December 7th - Walk The Line (PG-13 for some language, thematic material and depiction of drug dependency)
In 1955, a tough, skinny guitar-slinger who called himself J.R. Cash walked into the Sun Studios in Memphis. It was a moment that would have an indelible effect on American culture. With his driving freight-train chords, steel-eyed intensity and a voice as deep and black as night, he sang blistering songs of heartache and survival that were gutsy, full of real life and unlike anything heard before. As he pioneered a fiercely original sound that blazed a trail for rock, country, punk, folk and rap stars to come, he began a rough-and-tumble journey of personal transformation.

December 14th - The Polar Express (G - General Audiences)
On Christmas Eve, a doubting boy boards a magical train that's headed to the North Pole and Santa Claus's home.

December 21st - The Holiday (PG-13 for some sexual content and language)
Amanda Woods and Iris Simpkins have the same problem: men. In England, Iris writes for a newspaper and has an unrequited love for her colleague Jasper. Before Christmas, she is informed that Jasper is engaged and her life turns head over heels. In Los Angeles, movie-trailer maker Amanda has just broken with her unfaithful boyfriend and wants to forget him. Amanda and Iris meet on a home-exchange website, and impulsively swap their houses and cars for the holidays. Both find love unexpectedly and become stronger individuals.

December 28th - Little Miss Sunshine (R for language, some sex and drug content)
The Hoover family treks from Albuquerque, New Mexico, to the Little Miss Sunshine pageant in Redondo Beach to fulfill the deepest wish of 7-year-old Olive, an ordinary little girl with big dreams. Along the way the family must deal with crushed dreams, heartbreaks, and a broken-down VW bus, leading up to the surreal Little Miss Sunshine competition itself. On their travels through this bizarre landscape, the Hoovers learn to trust and support each other along the path of life, no matter what the challenge.
