I have heard now from multiple people that they are attempting to post or thinking that have posted comments here that are not being retained in the system. I don't know if this has been a problem before, or if this comment system or this glitch is new, but unfortunately the system does not appear to be capturing all the comments. Can you please look into it? Thank you.

It is nice that the paid leadership of the DBBPA has time to "Build a solid relationship with the new Director of Public works and partner together to identify areas of improvement and timelines for cleanliness, general repairs, etc." Be nice if residents in general could get such attention from the Director in this area. Curious why DBBPA allows ugly orange trailer downtown for over 2 months. Also, the budget presentation format is not which one would expect of a business organization.

I support a full time social worker accountable to the city. The social worker should be proactive in his/her work, meaning he/she must go along hot spots everyday and proactively look for homeless in the city vs waiting for a call. He/she should be walking, biking along strand, Sepulveda, greenbelt, parks at various hours. The offer of help must be well documented.

I also support beds with SHARED housing.

I am in favor of requiring rainwater/runoff capture measures (tho not green roofs). Not in favor of proposed permitting fees, nor a "Runoff Reduction Fee"--we do not need any more loosely controlled funds, or provide developers a way to to buy-out of actual sustainable development. Note that our city stormwater fees already are based on assumed runoff, and under Safe Clean Water there is a 2.5-cent square foot tax on the impermeable surface of our properties--from which the city gets a portion.
